Please write
To Gov. Warren

A letter from the California War Memorial Park Association I find so disturbing that I am passing it on to you. Perhaps, among us, we can help a little.

Los Angeles, Dec. 1, 1948
Editor of The Pine Cone:

Every effort will be made in the next few weeks to have Governor Warren and the California Legislature include in the State's next financial budget funds to save the great Sugar Pine and Sequoia trees of Tuolumne and Calaveras Counties from logging by midwest lumber interests. Sugar Pines, which have grown to a height of a modern 20-story building, are found nowhere in America except in a limited portion of Northern California and Southern Oregon.

"It is now or never," declared John B. Elliott of Los Angeles, chairman of the California War Memorial Park Association today. "The saving of these patriarchal trees from the lumberman's axe is a test of our individual pride and gratitude in the primitive beauty providentially bestowed upon California."

Although recently organized the association already numbers thousands of Californians prominent in many walks of life. The object of the association is to save this primeval forest of giant pine and redwood and convert it into a veterans' memorial.

The Save-the-Redwoods League, the Sierra Club, the Federation of Western Outdoor Clubs, the Izaak Walton Club, the Calaveras Grove Association and the California Councillor Club has joined with the California War Memorial Park Association to get the facts before the people.

The larger part of this virgin forest is owned by the Pickering Lumber Company of Kansas City, Missouri. The remainder is included in the North Calaveras State Park, and areas owned by the United States Forest Service as well as small individual holdings.

The Midwest lumber company is now pushing construction of logging railroads and spurs through their holdings, felling many giant trees as they go, in preparation for full-scale operations when weather permits. Many giant trees have already been cut.

Chairman Elliott points out that the great stands of Sugar Pines in Beaver Creek and Big Tree Creek are the largest and most beautiful in existence. Here many of the trees, especially along Beaver Creek, measure three to eight feet in diameter and attain a height of upwards of 240 feet. They range from 300 to 500 years old.

As they stand today, the great sugar pines and sequoias comprise a forest primeval immortalized by Longfellow and are ideally suited for a permanent memorial. It is here the lumber company is making ready to cut.

The California War Memorial Park Association is preparing petitions to go to Governor Warren, who is reported to be favorably

Bruno Walter Directing Mahler's Resurrection Symphony Over Radio Sunday Will Be A Great Musical Event

BY FLORENCE W. PARKER

The whole music world is quivering with anticipation just now, for one of the great works of our age, Mahler's Second Symphony—the Resurrection Symphony—will be performed in its entirety Sunday, December 5, at one p.m. over KQW, directed and conducted by Bruno Walter, our beloved veteran perfectionist.

Mahler passed away in 1911 leaving behind some of the greatest creations Vienna has ever produced, a last legacy of the eternal truths in music's presentation. Of his 10 symphonies, the Second has a tone of tragedy in the shadow of coming events which haunted the great master as a dream of man's fate. Yet, always there emerges widening confidence in the eventual outcome of all conflict and tragedy through the realization of greater things to come and new paths of approach to the infinite to be trodden. Thus Mahler gave all his energy and strength to the work he hoped might be a source of help and comfort in a form never before attempted on so gigantic a scale.

Mahler's nearest friend and collaborator was doubtless Dr. Bruno Walter, who has given us so much interesting information of Mahler's life and work in his recently published memoirs, Theme and Variations.

It may be of interest to know that in December of 1895, Mahler himself conducted his Second Symphony in Berlin with an enlarged Philharmonic Orchestra, a number of the greatest singers obtainable, together with the famous Singakademie Choir (a relic of Felix Mendelssohn days.) One can imagine Mahler's output of superhuman energy in such an undertaking; the facing of a more or less hostile group of northern critics, the crowd of musicians to be rehearsed to a point of utter perfection, Mahler's own high, invincible standard, all this to be reckoned with by a small highly-strung man from Vienna. The picture may help us to attune our minds and realize the magnitude of such an undertaking and the emergency of the message it contains.

Paging Pissarro, Paging Paul Klee

BY WILLIAM JUSTEMA

And presenting Lee Mullican!

In the last one-man exhibit she will present at the Pat Wall Gallery in Monterey (scheduled to close shop on December 31) Gertrude Harris is currently showing, and until December 19, the work of the most authentic abstract painter to appear on the West coast in many years. A young man of 24, with an academic background in art and the usual Army experience behind him, he has already been twice singled out during the year by purchase prizes in the San Francisco and Denver "annuals." Next year he will be given a solo appearance at the San Francisco Museum of Art. Meantime his local show is an event of unusual importance to anyone on the Monterey Peninsula who pretends to an interest in contemporary American painting.

Because Lee Mullican may do a good deal towards shaping our now very-much-befuddled vision when it comes to non-representational art forms. For one thing, he has gone instinctively to American Indian sources—he was born in Oklahoma!—sources which he studied for a year, upon getting out of the Army. I don't know exactly what he saw in our Southwest that influenced him so much. I do see that which he often achieves is a modern equivalent to the woven designs from Peru, the Andes.

T. H. Robsjohn-Gibbings in Mona Lisa's Mustache (Knopf 1947) would dismiss nearly the whole of the art of this century as a carefully planned and promoted "magic revival" comparable to the Greek and Gothic revivals of the century just passed (and presumably of no more historical significance.) He does so with tremendous documentation and considerable ingenuity. The implications are pretty frightening. Not only does he link modern art with Spiritualism and Fascism—in repeating the rumor about the secret collection of eminently recognizable pictures which Picasso is painting for posterity, he implies a general repudiation of most of the styles of painting we hold so dear today. But obviously there are elements of a racket in every art movement which succeeds. It is therefore all the more fortunate that we have young and gifted innocents like Mullican whose achievements are sound and valuable, no matter what black magic preceded them. "Black magic," a friend reminds me, "is above everything a technique for getting results from spurious methods."

Be that as it may, Lee Mullican, if a witch-doctor, is an exceedingly conscientious one. If, in other words, it is power he is seeking, he is doing it with consummate patient craftsmanship. And therein lies the degree of his originality. For all fresh results, in any

Students Write Their Own Nativity Play, Date Set For December 15 And 16

The Padre's Story, an original play by Bruce Bixler, whose collaborators were Pat Finley, Pauline Gonzales, Peggy Weaver, Christine Conley, Richard Hardin and Richard Whiteside will be the Sunset School's Christmas presentation this year, on the afternoon of December 15 and evening of December 16 at Sunset Auditorium.

In two scenes and six tableaux, The Padre's Story opens with a scene representing the forest of Carmel many years ago. A Spanish Grandee (Dennis Mahar) is taking his wife, the Donna Dolores de Castennea (played by Peggy Weaver) to the Mission. The night is Christmas eve. Losing their way the travelers are surrounded by wood nymphs (played by Sunset's younger pupils.) Great is their relief and joy when the Padre (Richard Whiteside) comes to their rescue. At this point the forest scene darkens, the curtain rises on a second stage, and as the Padre tells the most beautiful of all stories in the world, the Nativity is enacted in six tableaux, with Arthur Holman's Sunset Choir of 60 singing traditional carols, old and new.

Mary will be enacted by Joanne Leslie; Joseph by Howard Roloff. At this early date names of other members of the cast are not available.

Christine Conley is still busy on her costume sketches. The sets are being designed by Ernest Calley in the school work shop. Silk screen designs for the program, originated by the students, will be judged and the final selections made by Mrs. Beatrice Rea, art director, today.

The entire production is under the direction of Mrs. Rea, assisted by Pat Finley. Miss Neil Rush is in charge of programs. Pat Finley, as hospitality chairman of the student body, is in charge of ushers. "In fact," Mrs. Rea told us, "Pat is the busiest little girl in Sunset School, and doing a magnificent job!"

The first performance of The Padre's Story will be for the school's student body on Wednesday, December 15, at 1 o'clock.

The second and final performance, Thursday evening, December 16, for parents and all Carmel friends who love the Christmas story, at 8 o'clock in the Sunset Auditorium.

"We Tried To Be Optimistic," Says Jackson, Home Again

"Real estate is the same all over the country, slow, and will probably remain so until spring," says Corum Jackson, coming home this week from his annual trek to the realtors national convention.

"Before election the realtors had hoped for a lifting of controls so there would be competition. That would bring prices down. Now they see more control coming, and they are afraid of government housing."

"I couldn't find anybody at the convention who had voted for Truman," said the Monterey County Republican Central Committeeman.

"Anyway, we tried to have an optimistic convention."

Carmel Dog Gets Her Mail Like Anybody Else

"It's a fine post office that knows it's town dogs," says Derek Rayne.

When he went to pick up his mail the other day, there he found a post card all the way from Chicago, simply addressed to "Ch. Elskling of Foxlore, Carmel, California." Well, many a bigger (we won't say better) post office would have scowled and maybe returned the card to the young sender, who had thoughtfully included her address on the reverse side. But not so the world famed Carmel post office. From Ernest S. Bixler, postmaster, right on through the staff there was a gleam of pride-in-accomplishing-duty. Here was a Carmel personality, a champion no less, receiving mail. To be sure she didn't have a box of her own. Really, she wasn't even allowed to enter the building, but her correspondence was in safe hands. Research went forward at high speed. A linguist volunteered the information the "Elskling" meant "sweetheart" in Swedish, so a romantic aura surrounded the search. We won't tell you of how telephone books were scanned, perhaps even City hall was contacted, but, it was in the columns of The Pine Cone that the identity was clinched. Champion Elskling of Foxlore, four-year-old wirehair terrier, five times winner of the "best in the show" award at five dog shows, had in September won over 658 dogs from all over the country exhibited at the 23rd annual Del Monte Kennel Club Dog

Prof. Kreps On Inflation

By L. L. TURNER

The government threw away its only weapon against inflation when it drastically cut the income taxes, Dr. Theodore Kreps, economics professor in the Graduate School of Business of Stanford University, told the League of Women Voters conference in San Francisco last Monday evening. Four members of the Monterey Peninsula League attended the conference.

The national household needs to be taken care of, he told his audience, and the principles are like those of managing a home. Indeed, the word economics comes from Greek roots which together mean "to manage a home." The vaunted principle of "laissez faire" is nonsense, he insisted, as economic health in a society can no more maintain itself than can a garden without care. Depressions are entirely unnecessary, but definite action must be taken to prevent them, he added.

He listed several rules for economic health which he believes must be followed. We must remember that we are all one economically; bad conditions affecting one group will react upon the others. The total national budget, which includes the incomes of consumers and of business, government receipts, taxes, etc., must over a period of time be in balance with expenditures, and so far as the balance is concerned all expenditures, good or bad, are equally effective. Business expenditures on equipment and plant are important as they have a multiplier effect. In addition they indicate men's expectation for profit, which is derived from consumer demand, which at present is very high. This high consumer demand cannot continue, the speaker said, because the inflation has caused the per capita disposable income in the country to go down, since increased prices affect the purchasing value of the income.

When the government takes part of the citizens' income as taxes, the consumer demand falls and the pressure toward higher prices is lessened. Sometimes the government income should exceed the expenditures and the surplus funds should be used to pay off the debt; at other times, over a period of years, the government expenditures can well be the greater without injury to the economy, he said. The purpose of the expenditures, the response of business, the effect of the outlay are important, not the fact of unbalance.

The economist mentioned a number of publications which it is well to obtain and study in order to see the actual economic condition of the country, among them: the Economic Report of the President to Congress, based on the work of his Council of Economic Advisers; a new one will soon be issued; the Report of the Joint Committee on Economics, No. 1358 (in large part draughted by Dr. Kreps in his capacity as expert consultant for the Congressional committee); Taxes and the Budget, issued by the Committee for Economic Development; the Report on the high cost of living, reprinted for the public. Soon there will be a similar report on profits.

Basic governmental acts to stave off inflation and depression are a continuing policy to co-ordinate and utilize all conditions for useful employment and promote employment; adopt measures to restrict money in circulation; curb inflationary expenditures so far as possible; spend for public works during a depression; stimulate production of wanted goods in short supply, he said. This year a series of events have made government action inflationary in effect, such as the huge spending for the European Recovery Program and the reduction of taxes, which put more money in the hands of consumers to spend for scarce goods.

Fiscal 1948-49 will therefore "go in the hole" by one-and-a-half to two billion dollars. What can be done? Lower government expenditures? But 80 per cent of these are connected with defense. Reduce government personnel? Two-thirds of all persons in the service of the United States are in the Army, the Navy, or the post office department, and for the most part, other government departments are understaffed. If any substantial saving is to be made it can't come out of the small items in the budget. If some government functions, which have been voted by the people, are not to be cut, there's not much else that offers economy in the budget. Increase the national income (the people's, not the government's) and prevent depression by following some of the President's recommendations, concluded Dr. Kreps. Then, with a laugh, he added, "Be a New Dealer, or suffer depression. Which is worse?"

Editor's note: This is one man's opinion. The Pine Cone would welcome an expression from any of its readers who would care to give the other side of the question.

$1.25 Up Asked For Business Phones; .50 For Home Phones

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company applied today to the California Public Utilities Commission for the following increase in rates for Carmel:

	Present	Proposed
Business Individual.....	5.25	6.50
Residence Individual.....	3.50	4.00
Residence two-party.....	3.00	3.25
Residence four-party.....	2.50	2.75

Examples of toll rate changes: Station Day Rate

From Carmel To:	Present	Proposed
Salinas .....	.15	.20
San Jose .....	.40	.45
San Luis Obispo .....	.75	.75

The exchange rate to Monterey will continue .05 for the present, according to D. D. Muir, manager.

"The rate application was made necessary by the problem of rising costs—both labor and material," Muir added. "Rate increases thus far obtained by Pacific Telephone amount to about 15 per cent on California intrastate operations and have proved inadequate. The new application, if granted, will increase the revenues of the company about 14 per cent. The increase in the prices of almost everything we must buy in order to render telephone service has spiraled. Inclusive of the rate increase now being applied for, the average price of telephone service will have gone up less than half the 75 per cent rise in the cost of living index."

ALBEE MOVIES

The public is invited to attend the show which will begin at 7:45 and is free of charge.

Carmel Receives Tourel With High Enthusiasm In Concert Last Tuesday

By EBEN WHITTLESEY

The Carmel Music Society audience on Tuesday night accorded to Jennie Tourel, operatic mezzo soprano, a reception such as it has not given any artist since Marion Anderson was here. Miss Tourel has a winning platform personality and dramatic gifts with which, when coupled with a clear and lovely voice, make a combination that is hard to beat. In her generous and varied program she seemed to capture the essential flavor of the various nationalities represented by her selections.

The first group, which included Dido's Lament by Purcell, the Mermaid Song by Haydn, O Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me, by Handel, and O Yes, Just So, from Phoebe and Pan by Bach, disclosed an easy delivery, precision in handling the eighteenth century runs and grace notes, a bell-like quality in her lower notes, and in the last selection, a hint of the dramatic power which was more fully developed later in the evening.

In the second group, devoted to French composers, Miss Tourel showed her own national background in her perfect diction, and in the way she caught the gaiety and light humor of the songs. Claire de Lune by Debussy was sung with subtle tone shading and effective interpretation of the mysticism of the composition. Voyage a Paris by Poulenc had inimitable Gallic flavor and gaiety. Another Poulenc selection, Air Vif, had delicate and gracious humor, without sharpness.

As an encore at this point, Miss Tourel sang an Offenbach selection portraying a slightly tipsy character, whom she portrayed with an irresistible sparkle.

Two operatic selections, Una Voce Poca Fa, from the Barber of Seville, and as an encore, the Havanera from Carmen, gave full rein to the dramatic ability which had been latent in a number of earlier songs. There was fine breath control, splendid clarity of tone, and an effortless delivery in which none of her notes seemed to have been forced or hard to attain. To many listeners these selections must have been the high point of the program. There are singers with fine voices who manage to convey the impression that they are achieving very difficult effects by the use of great skill; there are others, like Miss Tourel, who make one feel that the hardest passages are easy for them.

The next group combined Russian and Spanish songs by Rachmaninoff, Tchaikowsky, Granados and Nin. The singer gave to each its full emotional content, and drew from each the spirit of its local background. None but the Lonely Heart was sung as an encore, with moving eloquence and rich tone color.

Two German songs, the inevitable Schubert Ave Maria, and Schumann's Du Bist Mein Herz gave her audience an appetite for more leiter which it would have been hard to satisfy. The whole range of her voice has a remarkably even quality and purity. The Ave Maria displayed a silken pianissimo which was delightful.

Two more encores brought the program to a close, The Little Cat, by Villa-Lobos, and Sonatina, by a contemporary American composer. Shouts and stamping were heard in our usually staid audience, bearing witness to a most moving and beautiful performance.

Paging Pissarro, Paging Paul Klee

medium, derive from an immersion, as it were, in the medium itself. Thus Mullican has already found a large measure of newness in sheer pigment, applied not by brush but by using a printer's inking knife. And why not? Too many painters abuse the brushstroke, either by a fake, bold virtuosity, or else in reworking the surface until it is as hard and cold as the surfaces in the kitchen and the laundry.

This is not to say that the appearance of a Mullican canvas is surprisingly new. It isn't. It's quite familiar in fact, and occasionally seems merely decorative. Sometimes, too, it "hurts" the eye beyond any real need for doing so. That's where Pissarro comes in—Pissarro and Seurat as the two most consistent exponents of quasi-scientific Impressionism. From them, Mullican gets his dots. Or, rather, from them—through Van Gogh he gets the dashes which in his own case are applied methodically, with seldom a trace of Vincent's celebrated rapture.

Yet here there is also rapture in a constant delicate sense of fantasy, developed most strikingly, for our time, by Paul Klee. It was not Klee, however, who started the fashion of the enigmatic title. As I understand it, Chirico and a brother of his who wrote poetry really are responsible, while obviously neither they nor Klee nor Miro can be blamed for the epidemic of fancy titles which can serve no purpose unless it be the preposterous one of alienating the average observer.

No, although Mullican's titles are invariably "poetic" they seldom seem far-fetched, and they never seem deliberate attempts to make the ordinary — extraordinary, the empty — meaningful. Most usually they are a well-fitted key opening on an additional pleasure in the work, when, by means of the right title an otherwise private experience communicates itself quite readily to the observer. For recognition is still a cause for enjoyment, even when symbols and "myths" are most assiduously being pursued. In this respect, such titles as "The Mirror of Little Pools" and "Blue Time in the City" are especial triumphs.

In sum: any obscurity in Lee Mullican's painting is superficial and perhaps largely dictated by the current taste for an abstract appearance. This taste or preference is exactly that and no more nor less. It has been in process of conscious development, now, for about 50 years. Due to its wide dissemination into advertising, fashion, etc., many pretentious and untalented painters are able, briefly, to command attention. That hardly matters. What does matter is that when a talent like Lee Mullican comes along — all who have eyes to see, should see him, and for what he is.

Bettinger Works Out Better Lighting For Art Gallery

An improvement in the display of paintings at the Carmel Art Association Galleries is under way, through some analysis and experimentation by Hoyland Bettinger, member of the board of directors.

Appointed by President Armin Hansen to study the situation, Bettinger discovered that the existing lighting system threw on pictures less than one third the light approved by leading galleries of the country. By extending and lowering present lights and improving reflectors, but without adding to electric power consumption, Mr. Bettinger, in a test section of the oil gallery, succeeded in increasing the amount of light on paintings almost 3½ times. Any one going to the gallery can readily note the improvement in the brilliance and appeal of paintings in the better lighted section.

The board is now getting estimates of the cost of extending the improvement to the whole of the oil gallery, and hopes that means can be found for carrying the work forward.

All Because We Don't Have Home Mail Delivery

A Fresno business man, Edwin M. Eaton, who has a Carmel home, filled the back page of his company magazine with an appreciation of the Carmel house naming tradition. His article follows:

THE PRESIDENT'S MONTHLY LETTER

One of the greatest charms of Carmel-by-the-Sea has always been its rustic village atmosphere. Built in pine woods bordering the beautiful Pacific Ocean, it has few sidewalks, street lights or other civilized aspects of the normal American town. Where trees grow in the streets, they are left unmolested. Traffic must detour around them.

In order to maintain the friendly small-town custom of meeting friends at the Post Office, the Carmel "natives" have insisted upon having no mail collections nor mail delivery within the city limits. This forces everybody to go to the Post Office for mail.

Since mail is not delivered, it has never been felt that house numbers were needed. As a consequence, most houses bear either the name of the occupant or an appropriate name for the house itself. This has led to considerable originality. It is interesting and amusing to walk about the picturesque village, noting the names people have chosen for their homes.

Many Houses are named for some feature of the site, as for instance "Twin Pines Cottage," "Oak Bower," "Wild Lilac" and "Sheltering Pines." Other names reflect the attitude of the owner. There is "Fancy Free," "Toujour Gai" and "Dunmovin." One house bears the name "It's Ours" while nearby is "The House of Hours." Some houses are named for their physical characteristics, like "Stonehouse" and "Rockbottom."

Carmel lots are mostly small (40x100 feet). This has led to the building of many tiny houses whose size is reflected in such names as "The Half Pint," "Demi Tasse," "Wee Haven" and "Nut Shell." Then there is the little house that has just been done over and named the "Bug's Ear." Probably the tiniest house of all is called the "Molecule."

The beach and sea are the sources of such house names as "Sea Urchin," "Sandpiper," "Sand Box," "Low Tide," "White Caps" and "Sunset."

The ship motif appears in some houses either in name or construction. There are anchors, propellers, ship's lanterns and hawsers. One house with a steep stairway has heavy rope banisters. Some of the nautical names are "Upper Deck," "Crow's Nest" and "Land Ho!"

The summer house which a Fresno contractor built for himself has a sign over its gate, "This is the House that Jack Built." The Walls family appropriately calls home "The House of Walls."

A house with a wordier sign than most, gives a hint of the trouble that the influx of tourists has caused home owners. The sign says "This House is Not for Rent and Not for Sale."

Of course there are many homes with Spanish names, such as "Casita Mia" (My Little House), "Las Ondas" (The Waves), "Muy Contento" (Very Happy) and "Casa Manana" (House of Tomorrow.) Next door to "Casa Blanca" is a new home which its owner with a sense of humor has named "Costa Plenty."

Some years ago a Fresno professor built a home near the beach where he hoped to retire. He called it "At Long Last." Another house is called "Right Ending," another "Shangri-la" and another "Snug Harbor." Perhaps the most appropriately named home in Carmel is that of a retired mathematics professor. During his forty odd years of teaching mathematics he, too, had looked forward to a little house by the sea where he might spend his later years. At last he achieved his goal. The little Carmel house to which he has retired bears a name plate with a geometric triangle in a circle and the words "After Math."

Cordially yours,

President

Carmel Will Have New Ambulance

The Carmel chapter of the American Red Cross will soon have a new ambulance replacing the present one, it was announced this week by Fred Mylar, ambulance committee chairman.

Members of the committee have been studying the situation thoroughly and will select a vehicle that will be the last word in comfort and convenience.

Money for the ambulance comes from a fund that has been accumulating for several years, partly through personal contributions and partly from the chapter's regular budget.

A "strong" wind is one that blows from 25 to 38 miles per hour.

Fables From The Files

—And when they returned home again, they were very, very tired. They unlocked the front door and went inside. Everything was just as they had left it. Then they went into the bedroom.

Suddenly there was a terrible noise.

"Who's been sleeping in my bed?" roared Raymond Maurice Carlson in a big loud voice.

It was true. Somebody had been sleeping in their bed! The house on San Antonio and Third looked like somebody's lost weekend.

They looked all about. There was nobody there. The doors were locked. The windows were tightly latched. Goldilocks had disappeared like a disorderly dream.

A quick search fortunately disclosed that nothing had disappeared with Goldilocks. However it was still very mysterious.

"Who was sleeping in our bed?" they asked the Carmel police.

"No one we know," said Police Chief Roy Frates. "But we'll investigate."

"Not I," said neighbor John Dryburgh. "But I did see the lights on. They snapped off when I came over to check. I did see a man's coat on a chair."

"No, not I," said the nephew of a former renter who was questioned. And such was the answer of several others, too. Then, just when it began to look like the perfect caper, a wee, small voice chimed in:

"Oh, I know now," said the former renter flustered. "It was a man who came to fix the house. I lent him the key and told him he could stay all night."

So ended the story of Carmel's male Goldilocks, who may go under the alias, "Messie Bessie."

People have been sticking their noses into poor John Roscelli's garbage business again. John complained to the CPD that something was rotten in Carmel. Someone besides himself has been collecting garbage in the city limits. In view of this Carmel police warned the offender that he might not operate without a license. Seems like the interloper was gathering stray greens from local market trash cans for pig fodder. Even the pigs are asking, "How tough can things get?"

The hunting season in Carmel city limits was recently closed. At the behest of neighbors and Carmel police, a local mother has confiscated the BB guns of her two young sons who thought it was open season on Carmel dogs, cats, and squirrels.

Lions Club Dance Saturday Night

An after-dinner dance with entertainment and prizes will be held Saturday night at Mission Ranch by the Carmel Lions Club as a benefit to raise money for heating installations at the Carmel High School aquatic center. Admission will be $2.50 per person, and tickets may be obtained from any local member of the organization.

In charge of arrangements for the affair are: Oscar Balzer, Frank Andrews, Dewitt Appleton, Ernest Bixler, Jim Burgess, Fred Bloomer, Mike Balazs, Tom Branson, Sam Coleman, Cliff Cook, Lyle Cooper and Bill Coughlin.

ATTEND MEETING

Tomorrow's Schools was the topic of his address when Dr. Willis Sutton, superintendent of schools, emeritus, of Atlanta Georgia, spoke on Wednesday evening at the Alisal Union School in Alisal. A large group of teachers, school trustees, and members of the Parent-Teachers' Association attended.

Editorials...

disposed to the veterans' memorial, seeking quick action by both the legislative and executive branches in support of the effort to save these trees. Chairman Elliott urges public spirited organizations and citizens to join the movement by writing or wiring the governor at Sacramento.

It is a simple thing to write a note to one's State Governor urging the preservation of these trees. Nobody who has ever stood before the consummate beauty of one of them, so different from all others of their family with their blue-purple bark, their graceful foliage seeming to droop with the weight of their long, slender cones, needs to be urged to do this much for their preservation.

If their beauty is not enough to plead in their cause, perhaps we should remember that the nation which destroys its trees, destroys its climate, its soil, its water supply, its wild life, and impoverishes the future generations.

All-Member Show Simmers With Vitality

BY MARY MADELEINE RIDDLE

Because we are fortunate to have regular and frequently changing exhibitions of the members of the Carmel Art Association, let no one take for granted the quality of the work shown. Go see the current quarterly all-member exhibition which opened at the Association Gallery yesterday. The first sweeping glance around the room returns an impression of aliveness, which is confirmed by a lingering, thoughtful tour.

Irridescence is a source of some of this aliveness, manifesting itself in the shimmering quality of opal tones.

F. M. Moore's water color, Low Tide at Sunset, and Ferdinand Burgdorff's Fishermen at Sunrise lean to the milky yellow and pink tones of opal; as does the very finished Cathedral—Mexico, of A. G. Warshawsky. E. V. Richard's King's River Canyon goes over into the blue fire of an opal with skilled color technique. The Landscape of Charles B. Rogers has more of this; the expanse of vibrant color in the predominant water of K. Aflund's Mending the Net progresses into the iridescence of blue and green found in peacock feathers. It is interesting, that repetition of opalescence should be again and again encountered in this particular exhibition; it takes considerable skill and control to achieve it.

Speaking of color, Al Needs' Western Seas is an interesting study of white not white, and it is refreshing to see a seascape that is almost all foam spilled between rocks rather than blue and green water.

The "neutral" tones of E. Cashion MacLennan's Desert Rocks are vivid because the play of light and shadow in a plane against plane counterpoint make more than adroit abstract pattern, give startling depth.

Taos Landscape by John S'Ohea spills and swirls colors on the hills with a control and underlying sureness of form that makes this landscape a superbly patterned design while remaining unreal as though seen from a great distance.

Dorothy Wallgren's Fall Landscape is vague, yet one cannot but respond to it as to a color poem. Chiapas Still Life by Gene Francis is a bit of modern music, with a sharp blue further edged by contrast with lime and chartreuse tones.

Armin Hansen's sombre painting of two mourning fishermen standing over a third prone on the beach, I love, and I don't care why, though I do know why; because color and form, though not discarded, are so subordinated to emotion, to deep and real feeling, not surface sentimentality. It's all dark and cold, quietly dramatic.

Plum Blossoms by I. Maynard Curtis manages to be decorative yet free; free and fresh also is the landscape by Ann Pierce, pleasing in the color values achieved within a very limited palette.

The group of water colors maintains the reassuring impression of growing, reaching painters. Sam Colburn has another picture, The Barn, full of strange darkness and a kind of volcanic light, charged with feeling though lacking in form. The Wharf by Ranfa Stearns plays with color, enjoys the playing. Wintery, dark, moody is the little landscape by Dora Hagemeyer; it challenges and it searches.

The sparkle and French impressionism of Patricia Cunningham is at its best in her Harbor Scene. Harvey Williamson, who also shows an oil of character and feeling, uncluttered by detail, (House on a Hill) has a skillful alive watercolor of Oil Hills in which olive greens and gray sky are anything but drab. Joe Mooday's Amayllis Cottage rates a double-take; this slanted house on a slanted street

Alice Keith Offers Christmas Program For Organ Recital

Miss Alice B. Keith, organist of All Saints' Episcopal Church, will give her final recital in the series of three for the benefit of All Saints' Church Building Fund, at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the present church building on Monte Verde street.

Miss Keith has chosen for her opening number, Christmas Prelude (from VIII Concerto) by Corelli. The Bach group will include three chorale preludes: Come Saviour of the Gentiles; In Dulci Jubilo, and Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring. Included in Handel's Suite from Water Music, (1) Allegro Vivace; (2) Air; (3) Hornpipe; (4) Minuet; (5) Allegro Maestro. From the Gothic Suite by Boellman she will play the Choral, Minuet, and Priere a Notre Dame. And for her fifth and final group Miss Keith will present Capriccio (The Chase) by Fumagalli, and three movements of Franck's Fantaisie, (1) Lento; (2) Allegretto Cantando; (3) Adagio.

The public is cordially invited.

is meticulously detailed yet fresh and full of mood. Pauline Pierson's Trigardia has the startling and abstract quality of a Georgia O'Keefe. I especially liked Old Winch House by Edmond Dempsey; just an old gray shed and some stuff stacked against a fence; only it's not gray and it's not casual, but well and simply painted, and full of emotion.

Literature Class To Hear Poems Of Glenn Clairmonte

Mrs. Glenn Clairmonte will give a reading of her sonnets and unrhymed poems before the current literature group of the Carmel Adult School, at 7:30 next Tuesday evening in room 11 of Sunset School. Recently Mrs. Clairmonte destroyed 300 of her published poems, retaining only 180 of those which have appeared in many periodicals throughout the country. Her prize poems were collected in Carcassonne (University of California Press), and a later collection under the name of Contours (Columbia University Press) contained some of those which will be read next Tuesday.

The early part of the hour will be spent in a discussion of a new volume of William Stanley Braithwaite's poems, as a birthday salute to the man who was the first editor to encourage American poets, beginning in 1913. Dr. Braithwaite's biography of the Bronte sisters will be published by Coward-McCann in February, and his autobiography will follow in 1950.

Visitors are welcome to attend any or all of these Tuesday evening meetings.

ONE-WOMAN THEATER

Under the auspices of the Carmel Woman's Club, who sponsored her last year, Dorothy Crawford, known as the One-Woman Theater, will appear in a program of original sketches at the Carmel Theater at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

While still a child she improvised song, and her parents, both professional writers, gave her a thorough musical education. Her first theatrical experience came when she composed and directed the incidental music for Maurice Browne's production of Journey's End. Later, in the theater, she played ingenue as well as character roles, painted scenery, and directed. Touring the world, Miss Crawford collected native songs and memorized the characteristics of unique personalities with whom she came in contact.

Using merely a straight back chair and a simple table as stage properties, Miss Crawford created such an atmosphere of reality in her monologues that she held her audience spellbound when she appeared here last year.

Mrs. Verne Skillman, first vice-president, will introduce the artist.

HI CHATTER

By Nancy Page

Girls' basketball season ended with the juniors winning the cup, coming out ahead of the seniors by six points. Final standings, based on a point system of two points per win and one point per tie was as follows: Juniors, 24; seniors, 18; sophomores, 9, and Freshmen, 7.

The Junior Gray team had the highest individual score, remaining undefeated throughout the entire season. Second individual standing was won by the Senior Grays, with one loss. The Junior Red team was third, having five wins and two losses. High scorers and outstanding forwards of the season were Ann Whittaker, Sali Dalton, and Jackie Briggs.

Speedball season gets under way next week with an inter-class tournament scheduled to start Monday after school. Girls interested in being on the various class teams have signed up to play, and from the looks of things it will be a close race again this year for the championship. Last year's winner of the trophy was the class of '49, with the class of '50 coming in for a close second. Laurel Hildebrand is this year's speedball manager.

Those taking part in the archery tournament have been staying after school to shoot, with final scores and winners being decided on the basis of six different scores. So far Sue McCloud has had the best individual score, with Jennifer Lloyd second, and Donna Douglas and Ann Thoeni ranking not far behind in the contest. Results will be known next week when the tournament will be completed and scores tabulated.

At a meeting of the senior class this week, members discussed and made plans for a school dance to be sponsored by the class. To be held on Friday night, December 17, the affair is the first after-the-game dance to be staged during this year's basketball season. A good turnout should be expected, since the Carmel-Pacific Grove game is that night in our home gym. Class members volunteered for various committees, and chairmen appointed were: Georgann Bell, planning committee; Patsy Canoles, decorations; Louise Harber, refreshments; Harry Watson, tickets and publicity; Elton Clark, cleanup, and Benita Updike, records.

The Leaders' Club spent Wednesday evening going to the homes of several members for the various courses in its traditional progressive dinner. Every year the group holds such an affair, with each course of the dinner being served at a different home. The meal began at Kathie von Meier's, where appetizers were served, after which soup and salad were eaten at Nancy Brown's. The entree was served at Edelen Cory's, and dessert was at Biz Carr's. Laurel Hildebrand was general chairman of the affair. After the meal, a business meeting was held during which plans were made for the annual Christmas food drive which the club sponsors. Arrangements for caroling on Christmas Eve were also discussed.

Mrs. Ed Cochrane and Mrs. Wilma Campbell, representing the Armed Services YMCA, spoke to junior and senior girls at a meeting Tuesday about the activities at the "Y" and extended to them a special invitation to a party to be held there this Saturday night. Parents of the girls were also invited to the meeting, and in describing the dances held at the "Y," which is in Monterey, both women emphasized the fact that these are not public dances. Given for the service men in this area, they are carefully supervised, and parents are also invited to attend. This Saturday's dance is especially open to girls between the ages of 16 and 18 from the three Peninsula high schools, but in order to attend other dances, which are held weekly, girls must be members of the Girls' Service Organization. Girls can become full fledged members of this national organization after being recommended and going through a period of training. Officially known as Junior Hostesses, the members of the GSO attend monthly meetings, and are eligible to be in on "Y" activities.

The big social event of the season is just over a week away, and plans and preparations have been flying thick and fast. The affair in question is, of course, the Winter Ball. To be held on Saturday night, December 11, from 9:00 to 12:00 p. m., in the school cafeteria. The dance promises to be a gala affair, with decorations on a Christmas tree in the center of the room with other smaller ones also adding to the atmosphere. Snowmen will be on hand to greet the guests, and icicles will adorn the windows. Refreshments, which will include punch, cookies, and popcorn balls, should be among the best yet. It is being especially emphasized that the dance is formal only for the girls, but boys are asked to wear coats and ties. Hard-working chairmen of the va-

WATSONVILLE CAGERS PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Carmel basketball fans will have an opportunity to view the smoothest working high school cagers in the CCAL tonight when the Watsonville Wildcats invade the local gym. The Wildcats have always been a power in basketball, and this year is no exception. Last week the Red and Gray journeyed to Watsonville and received for two convincing rubbings, but the local boys claimed to have learned a lesson from playing the smooth Wildcats and vow to even the score on their own court. Both of the Watsonville teams have size and good speed to go with a sturdy man-for-man defense.

Chuck Dawson will probably send Bob Updike, Henry Overin, Jim Thompson, Stewart Emery, and Bob Burgess after the Wildkittens, while varsity starters will be Lee Laugenour, Dick Gargiulo, Gene Vandervort, Steve Whitaker and Jim Hare.

The lightweight tilt will get underway at 7 o'clock, with the varsities taking the floor at 8:15.

CHS BASKETBALL FIVES WIN OVER HOLLISTER

After three days' practice, the Carmel High School cage aspirants entertained the Hollister Haybalers on the local court and emerged on the long end of both the lightweight and varsity encounters. The lightweight fracas was touch and go for the whole contest, with the Padrecitos pulling away in the last minute to cop a 22-17 verdict. Bob Burgess found the Hollister zone defense to his liking and swished through 14 markers to lead the Carmel scorers. Bob Updike and Henry Overin, two promising freshmen, played steady floor games and provided the defensive spark for the little Padres.

In the varsity fray, the Padres started with runaway tactics and held a 15-5 advantage at halftime. In the third quarter the Haybalers began to find the range and closed the gap to 18-15. With three minutes to play, the score was 20-20. At this point Vandervort dropped in two corner shots and Gargiulo followed with two close ones to give the Padres a safe lead.

Scoring honors were pretty evenly divided with Vandervort and Gargiulo garnering 8 points apiece for the Carmel cause, while Sparling and Maheu picked up 8 apiece for Hollister.

Players seeing action for the Carmel lightweights were: Bob Burgess, Bob Updike, Stewart Emery, Henry Overin, and Bill Daniels. For the varsity: Lee Laugenour, Dick Gargiulo, Walt Frey, Denicio Narvaez, Eric Short, Gene Vandervort, Lannie Doolittle, Dick Weer, Jim Hare, Steve Whitaker, and Neils Reimers.

Tomorrow night the Padres travel to Hollister to engage the Haybalers in a rematch. First game starts at 7:30.

FORTY-SIX GRIDDERS EARN AWARDS AT CHS

At today's awards assembly in the high school auditorium, 46 football players and two managers received blocks and stars for their hard work during a fine football season. Twelve of the boys have played their last game of football for the Red and Gray, but 34 will return for next year's team. The senior award winners are: Dick Taplin, Floyd Adams, Captain Art Harber, Tom Corley, Les Bracisco, Dan Holmes, Dick Gargiulo, Walt Frey, Howard DeAmaral, Elton Clark, and Dick Sumner from the varsity. Captain Gary Shaw and Gunnar Reimers comprise the seniors on the limited squad.

In addition to winning the regular awards, several of the boys were picked for all-league honors. Captain Art Harber, Tom Handley, Jim Hare, Jack Belangee and Floyd Adams were selected on the B division All-CCAL squad. Players and coaches voted Jim Hare the most valuable player on the squad, and he will be the recipient of the Monterey Elks' ring award. Jim was selected because of his fine attitude, leadership, and faithful attendance at practice.

Varsity award winners in addition to seniors already mentioned: Birney Adams, Pete Berg, Jack Belangee, Pierre Boutet, Jim Hare, Tom Handley, Lee Laugenour, Frank Richey, Mitchell Steenhoudt, Dick Weer, Steve Whitaker, Legare McNeill, and Keith McKenzie. Additional lightweights are Jim Moran, Joe Beard, Syl Burger, Bill Daniels, Joe Diekemper, Stew Emery, Mick Frisbie, Delfo Giglio, John Gibbs, Jim Harget, Henry Overin, Ron Peterson, Thor Rasmussen, Bob Updike, Howard Veit, Chris Williams, Ken Kiley, and Neils Reimers.

Mike Ricketts and Butch Laugenour were awarded managers' blocks for a job well done in the water boy and managing department.

MONTEREY ELKS FETE ALL PENINSULA GRIDDERS

With Dan Searle as the guiding light, the Monterey Elks put on a swell banquet for the football players of the Peninsula high schools last Monday evening. Featured by loads of good food and fine entertainment, the party was a success from start to finish. In addition to the grand feed, Searle announced that the Elks were awarding a signet ring to the most valuable player of each high school. Players and coaches were to select the lucky player. Feature speaker of the evening was Joe Verducci, St. Mary's football coach, who gave an inspiring talk on football in general. Pictures of the St. Mary's-Santa Clara game ended the evening's festivities.

RICKETTS AND BOYS' CLUB SINK NAVY HOOP TEAMS

Officer Dufur's Carmel Boys' Club basketball team got off to a good start for the 1948 season last Monday night when the local lads took the measure of the USS Boll, 26 to 24. Ward Gilbert paced the Club scorers with 8 tallies, but all the players contributed points for the Boys' Club account. The Navy had the size on Dufur's boys, but the locals were too fast on the rush for the basket. Playing for the Boys' Club: Bob Morrisseau, Ed Stetson, Ward Gilbert, Rickey Masten, John Frey, and Howard DeAmaral.

Ricketts Sport Shop cagers, led by Ky Miyamoto, submerged the Navy Line School, 35 to 20, in Monday's second game. Ky tallied 8 points in the first half, just to show the kids the way, and eased off in the second half to let the youngsters take over. Frank Timmins, with 13 points, was high scorer for the Sports, but all the Carmel boys had their eyes on the hoop and hit the scoring column. Mike Ricketts played a rugged game around both backboards and controlled most of the rebounds. Ricketts lineup: Howard Lockwood, Mike Ricketts, Ky Miyamoto, Del Wermuth, and Frank Timmins.

The Time Has Come ..

By Kippy Stuart

Goody-Goody! I have contradicted myself! What a comfort it is to discover that one is not perfect. My back-sliding has to do with fuchsias. A few columns back, I cautioned against pruning fuchsias until late January. Then, right along in the middle of November I whack away at fuchsias and tell the world about it. Now, how can one put any reliance in a person so contrary?

Since I had better produce an alibi, here it comes, and please, help me make this alibi stick. There are fuchsias and fuchsias, each variety having different needs. My fuchsias planted to the north exposure get tired sooner than those subjected to the mild sunlight. My patio fuchsias get very tired in November. It would be feasible to hold off pruning until spring, but if I did hold off, my life would be dedicated to dustpan and brush, digging myself out of fallen debris. I must convince you that my patio fuchsias get very tired in November, so I put this particular lot of fuchsias to sleep early. Merely as a convenience to myself.

To the east of my house I have a complete fuchsia garden. The bushes are radiant now, filled with healthy blooms. So, I wait until February to prune this east garden. Please, gentle reader, have I made my alibi stick?

The Good Earth

It takes time and money to build character; it takes time and money to build soil. I am continually running into situations where where I am asked to make short cuts in gardening. I talk and talk about the necessity of drainage, of soil preparation, of clearing away tree roots and in seven cases out of ten I am faced with this complaint, "Other people just stick things in the ground and they grow. Why must I go to the expense of all this nonsense?" Oh dear, what's the use of argyfyng. The spots where one can "stick things in the ground" are few and far between. The average Peninsula garden is a mass of underlying roots which simply must be cleared away. For shrubs and trees, one must dig very deep holes, clear away all roots, and fill the bottom of the trench with crushed rock. The new shrub must be given every chance to survive, and the best procedure is the crushed rock plus good mulch. Ah! Mushroom manure, that aristocrat of mulches! I grow lyrical every time I behold my mushroom manure bin. Talk about character! That mushroom manure has character plus.

Just why I should be so bent upon connecting garden soil with the human character, I wouldn't know. Pure irrelevance, I suppose. Anyhow, Rebecca McCann, in her Cheerful Cherub, has this to say of character.

"I've worked to build my character I wish I'd not commenced it For virtue is it's own reward, That's what I have against it."

Stephen, Aged 6

A little boy, aged six years, who played in Carmel's sunny ways and romped along our golden beach last summer has gone, and his mother writes to The Pine Cone, "Perhaps the place children go after death is something like Carmel..."

The many Carmel friends of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Wilson and their children, Craig, Stephen and Wendy, will be shocked and grieved to hear of the passing of Stephen, age six, of bulbar poliomyelitis, on November 18, after two days' illness, in Sacramento where the Wilson family now lives. Mrs. Wilson is the former Carola Fhuchum who spent most of her childhood in Carmel.

Stephen was born and raised in Sacramento, but with frequent visits during his little life in Carmel, a spot he loved. His mother's letter continues: "Last May we purchased a summer cottage in the Woods, and just this past summer we spent four and a half weeks there. The children loved it, especially Stephen who, in our little family group was the shining example of generosity, obedience, kindness and love."

We who love Carmel can only be silent, with very full hearts, before the grief of a mother and father who find consolation in picturing their child in an eternal Carmel of pine scented woodlands, blue skies and the soft singing sea.

Crowd Enjoys Film, Screen Tour Is Success Already

Handouts to Our Wild Pals might well be the sub-title of the delightful nature film shown last Saturday night at Sunset Auditorium by William Ferguson, scientist, as the second in the Screen Tour offering of the local Audubon Society. Handouts they were, of bread by Mrs. Ferguson to a canny old doe and her more timid yearling offspring; of peanuts to various feathered pals by the scientist's daughter, shown at various ages, with engaging chipmunks and ground squirrels also accepting her bounty; and the greedy squirrel that stuffed his cheek pouches so full of sunflower seeds, which first he thriftily shell-ed, that he looked like an aggravated case of mumps. The number and variety of the Fergusons' wild guests in Rocky Mountain National Park, Colorado, excited the envy of adults and children in the audience.

Mountain scenery swathed in snow, spring streams exploding from their winter cover, the first flowers and a succession of later bloom, with bees, both honey and bumble, industriously pollenizing, camouflage in eggs and feather coats, family life in crowded nests and more food, the work of the beaver in conservation, these and many other intimate shots made the tour soul-satisfying to the large audience. Ferdinand Ruth, in general charge of the tours for us sedentary travelers, announced with gratification that the attendance had already assured financial success of the series and promise of more of the same next year.

OUR PERSONALITY BOX

At our last class meeting we appointed three people to work on a Personality Box. They are Patsy Ricketts, Georgianna Rawlings and Sondra Sowell.

The idea of a Personality Box is to have everyone look for polite and nice things done by other classmates. When a person sees someone else doing something polite and nice, they write it down on a little piece of paper and put it in the Personality Box. Every Friday someone is appointed by the president to read the slips.

We hope that by doing this it will encourage our class to be nice to each other and become better citizens.—Lucy Elstob.

GIRLS SPORTS

We have Miss Rush for our game teacher every Monday afternoon at 3:30. We have kickball and baseball, and on rainy days we have dancing. I am on Jeanne's team and so is Sondra and Judy and others, too. It is lots of fun and we always look forward to Mondays.—Carol Shields.

THE TURKEY NAMED GOBBLE

Gobble was a friendly turkey and always wanted to help other turkeys and humans.

This story about Gobble happened one Thanksgiving in Massachusetts in about 1625. Gobble saw some white Indians fighting some red Indians. Thinking that this was his chance to become a hero, he tried to stop the fight and jumped right out in the middle of it. That night everyone knew he was a hero. There was a feast in his honor. For the main dish they had roast turkey, and as much as I hate to say it, he was the turkey.—Eugene Mullnix.

OUR CLASS MEETING

We have a class meeting every Friday morning at 10:40. After President Jeanne Fratessa calls the meeting to order, Cynthia Blum, who is the secretary, reads the minutes. Old and new business comes next when we have most of our discussions. Then the president chooses monitors. Vice-president Georgie Rawlings writes the monitors and the row dismissal down on the board. Then Jeanne turns the meeting over to the entertainment chairman.

They usually put on skits or a play. Once the boys played as if they were girls and the girls played as if they were boys. It was a hilarious play and it kept us in stitches.—Bonny Lynn Redhead.

P. E.

Every day Mr. Rogers has the sixth and seventh grades for P. E. They play football. At the beginning of the week we divide all the boys into four even teams. The four teams play each other. On Friday the winning team plays the all-stars of the three losing teams. Howard Roloff's team was the winning team last week, while this week's winner was Christopher Gray's team.—Tony Grimm, Eugene Tartaglino.

NEW ARRIVALS IN CLASS

Lately we've had four new students in our room. They are Leslie Harrison, Mary Osborne, Robert Raymond and Peter Brickey. Leslie started in Carmel in the fourth grade and was promoted to our room from the fifth grade this year.

Mary came to Carmel in the third grade. She then went to Seaside and from there to Pacific Grove. She came back to Carmel and is now in the sixth grade. Robert came from Honolulu in June. He started at Pacific Grove School and then came here. Peter came from Redwood City.

They all like Sunset and we like them, too.—Georgie Rawlings.

MY FAVORITE BOOK

The title of my favorite book is The Secret Panel. It was written by Frank W. Dixon. It is a very exciting mystery story about Frank and Joe Hardy. I thought it was a very interesting book because it was so exciting.

It was about two boys who were about to catch some crooks in a cave but instead the crooks caught them. If you would like to find out more about the boys you can get the book in the library or in any book store.

—Gregory Danelz.

MY FAVORITE BOOK

The name of my favorite book is The Adventures of Tom Sawyer and it's by Mark Twain. It is my favorite book because it is about a boy who gets into mischief with another boy who doesn't have any folks and nobody likes him. It's the kind of book that puts chills into you and makes you not want to stop reading. My favorite characters are Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn. Tom and Huck go into a graveyard at night and see a murder. The murderer was called "Injun Joe." Later Tom and Huck track down the murderer and in the end he dies. Tom and Huck are rich after finding a lot of gold.—Helen Ross.

ASSEMBLY

Today our school went to our assembly. After the Student Body meeting Mrs. Rea's reading class read a poem. The name of it was What America Means to Me. It was about all the wonderful things of America. While the poem was recited, Mr. Holman's chorus sang some songs and Miss Rush showed some of Mr. Holman's slides.

giving and the turkeys were looking for hiding places. Among the turkeys was a family who thought they were the best. In this family was Papa Turkey, Mama Turkey, and Baby Turkey. The whole family would walk through the forest with their beaks in the air and all the other turkeys would whisper, "Some day when they are walking with their beaks up in the air it will get stuck." It was dark and all the turkeys went to sleep in their hiding places. The next morning the turkeys stayed in their hiding places because they knew the turkey hunters were coming pretty soon but the family came out and said, "You silly turkeys. You're such fraidy cats." Just then a hunter sneaked up and was ready to shoot at them but luckily they saw him. They were so scared that they ran a whole mile away and all the turkeys said that that was the funniest sight they ever saw.—Bonnie Wager.

A NEW SAVINGS CENTER for the Monterey Peninsula

Resources over 18 million dollars!

Reserves over 1¼ million dollars!

64 Years of continuous earnings!

Pioneer Investors Savings and Loan Association, the oldest Savings and Loan Association in California, extends its service to the Monterey Peninsula with the opening of an office in Monterey. Founded in 1885, Pioneer comes to Monterey with a record of 64 years of soundness and stability. First and foremost a Savings Institution, we offer insured protection with steady earnings to those who have savings to place, as well as convenient local financing to those who want to build or buy homes. Your account, whether large or small, is welcome here.

A Savings Institution for more than 60 years

It was 64 years ago, in 1885, that a group of far-sighted men in nearby San Jose first recognized the need for a thrift association of the savings and loan type to serve the growing west. The association which they founded has served continuously ever since, with present offices in San Jose and Oakland, and now a new and convenient office in Monterey.

Insured Protection for your Savings

The savings of every investor in Pioneer are automatically protected up to $5,000 by Federally sponsored insurance. For a husband and wife, insurance up to $15,000 can be arranged. In addition, the integrity of your savings is further assured by Pioneer's record of 64 years of sound and conservative management.

Steady Earnings
Twice a Year,
Every Year

In 64 years of operation, Pioneer has never failed to pay interest promptly to the thousands who have placed their savings here — twice a year, every year, at better-than-average rates. Earnings start the day your money is received, with retroactive interest from the 1st of any month on money placed here by the 10th.

Utmost Convenience and Flexibility

Savings can be deposited in person or by mail, or an officer of the association will gladly call on you at your convenience. You can open an account with any amount, add to it as you please. Earnings start immediately. Withdrawals are just as convenient, and no fees or charges of any kind are ever made against a Pioneer Savings Account.

THOMAS N. HOOPER
Vice President and Manager
Monterey Office

A native Californian and a resident of the Monterey Peninsula since 1936, Mr. Hooper has been connected with banking in the Monterey area for the past 11 years before joining Pioneer.

What Becomes of Your Savings Here?

Our business is not only to provide a safe and profitable place for savings, but also to make loans to those who want to build or buy homes. Your savings are converted into selected first mortgage loans. Our experienced officers make the loans, attend to all details, and pay you good interest on your money.

Furthermore, your money stays right here on the Monterey Peninsula. It will not leave this community. In fact, Pioneer pledges that for every dollar you place in a Pioneer Savings Account during the coming year, we will place two dollars in home-financing loans here in the peninsula area. This means jobs . . . materials . . . building activity . . . homes!

Thus you help to build your community at the same time that you build your own security with a Pioneer Insured Savings Account. It's as simple as that!

CENTENNIAL SOUVENIR—As a California Centennial feature, Pioneer Investors Savings and Loan Association has struck off a limited number of de luxe reprints of The Californian, California's first newspaper, published in Monterey on August 15, 1846. ### THE SUNSET SCHOOL NATIVITY PLAY PART I—THE FIRST CARMEL NATIVITY PLAY—1928

BY CAROL CARD

How many of the people who flock to Sunset School auditorium each December to see the annual Nativity Play, realize that this year marks the 20th anniversary of this lovely tradition? The performance scheduled for December 16, 1948, will be the nineteenth given by Sunset School, but Carmel's first Nativity Play, a community project, was presented Dec. 23, 1928, at the Theater of the Golden Bough.

That winter, the Carmel Parent-Teachers Association conceived the idea of a community Christmas entertainment featuring a musical program combined with "living pictures of the Old Masters." And it was to be more than just a free public entertainment; it was also to serve as a "Village family reunion" for a once closely knit community which seemed to have grown apart due to the great influx of newcomers who came in the wakes of the real estate boom of the middle 1920s. Accordingly, every club, clique, church, guild, every man, woman, and child was invited to participate. A committee was formed, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Henry F. Dickinson, from the membership of the various organizations of the town, including the Woman's Club, Abalone League, Music Society, and Art Association, to develop plans and work out the details of production. Catherine Seideneck of the Art Association was chosen to plan the tableaux and design costumes and stage sets; while Fenton P. Foster, as choral master, had charge of the music, some of which was arranged by Mrs. Dickinson. The manager of the Golden Bough offered the use of the theater for the affair, but since it was operating at this time as a motion picture theater, rehearsals had to be held at the Sunset School auditorium—the room which now serves as library.

The Story of the Nativity prepared by Mrs. Seideneck consisted of five scenes based on the Gospel according to St. Luke, which were to be presented in tableau and slow-motion pantomime against a background of appropriate vocal and orchestral music. Reading of the St. Luke's text also accompanied each of the scenes, which included the Annunciation, The Shepherds, The Three Magi, The Adoration, and The Madonna With Four Angels. Actors and chorus were recruited from the community as a whole—adults and school children both—and all worked with a will, drilling and rehearsing for weeks. Beautiful and unusual color harmonies, lighting effects, and stage settings were featured. The musical portion of the program included not only the traditional Christmas carols, but also many of the less familiar ones, and selections by Bach, Handel, and Caesar Franck. With the combined musical and artistic talent of Carmel and so much hard work behind it, the success of this Nativity Play seemed assured. Its sponsors looked forward to seeing it become an annual affair.

Yet, strangely, this first Nativity Play was probably the least successful of any yet staged. The tableaux were lovely; the music was beautiful—when it could be heard—but the play just didn't hang together. There were seemingly interminable waits between scenes, with nothing to see but the curtain. The chorus was backstage, and the singing could be heard only faintly by the audience. People fell to chatting while they waited for something to happen. And judging from the critical nosegay offered in The Pine Cone Dec. 28, 1928, issue, there were unforeseen comic developments in the program:

"There are occasions in Carmel where a choral master needs to be a gymnast. Fenton P. Foster proved himself one Sunday at the Nativity Story performance. The audience had come expecting to sing carols, but there was no one on hand to direct it. They heard sweet voices somewhere in the distance, but hesi-

CAMBRIA PINES

*With mingled scent of pine and turf
And sea-wind redolent of surf
Upon the thronelike cliff I sense
The silent form of eloquence.
I watch uplifted pines aware
Of reverence to share—to share.*

*Above the sea, beneath the sky
The silent mist comes floating by
To soothe me with its tenderness
And hush the roar of ocean-stress.
While on this citadel I feel
That Heaven's peace is real—is real.*

LULLABY FOR AN OLD LADY

*Bright on a cloud-rim far to the west
Is the opal fire of the moon;
And a weary old lady has gone to her rest. . . .
Now sleep is her only boon.*

*(Sleep—sleep,
With your face to the west—
Where you go on your long journey soon!)*

*All day long she has sat in a dream,
With the veiled eyes of fourscore and ten,
Still, in her chair, seeing old lights gleam,
And living lost years again.*

*(Sleep—sleep,
Though the dawn's first gleam
May not open those eyes again!)*

*Silent, she saw, at the ebbing of day,
One brightening yellow star,
Wistfully followed its drifting way
In a turquoise river afar.*

*(Sleep—sleep;
One more waiting day
Has gone where your yesterdays are!)*

*Gently, gently, night wind blow!
Let her journey as far as she will—
And meet the loved faces of long ago
On some amber Elysian hill!*

Death's wing you will know,
And smile—he may come when he will!)*

tated to butt in. 'We're supposed to sing,' said a lady standing along the side wall. The audience tried to, but it is difficult for a mixed crowd to sing with well-led, trained opposition on the other side of a big drop. 'Give us a leader and we'll sing all right,' promised William P. Silva, occupying a front seat. Abandoning his choir in the rear to their own devices, Leader Foster came through a stage door at a bound, and was on the rostrum beating time. The crowd joined in lustily, keeping time and tune. By this time those back stage began to falter. Next they were singing a different carol from the one the audience was caroling. The result was a jumble . . . leader Foster rushed back stage to straighten them out, then raced forward carrying the bear while he ran, to give it to the audience. Several dashes back and forth that would have done credit to a college freshman, produced results . . . the chorus was produced out of chaos.

"Two boys wrestling and pulling hair in front of the Golden Bough stage . . . in the waits between tableaux, deserve a vote of thanks. At least they gave the audience something to look at.

"The white smoke arising from the brazier in the Adoration Tableau . . . worked beautifully and added much to the charm of the scene. It was not till after the curtain had fallen that the fumes reached the noses of the audience. They were sulphurous. Not wishing to be fumigated, or fearing a tear bomb, several started for the exits. But the evil smelling gas was soon absorbed by the audience."

But the performers themselves had a wonderful time, and in spite of the fact that the play fell far below public expectation, it nevertheless gave everyone an idea of how good a performance of this type could be. Perhaps the trouble had arisen from having to hold rehearsals one place and give the public performance someplace else. Perhaps the undertaking had been too elaborate for a first attempt. Perhaps there had been just too many cooks in the soup. Whatever the difficulties had been, they were solved the following year by turning the project over to Sunset School. For in spite of its rather sad beginning, the Nativity Play survived by popular demand, and has continued as a thriving institution.

(Next week—Nativity Plays from 1929 to 1937. If you weren't in them your neighbor probably was.)

NEW STANFORD PRESS BOOK

What about Japan? This question takes on strategic importance today, what with the omnipresent cold war and the current disturbances in China and Korea.

The principles guiding Allied military occupation in Japan must be understood by every American who looks uneasily Eastward. A new book, just published by Stanford University Press under the auspices of the American Institute of Pacific Relations, Inc., gives a concise review of the aims, methods, and accomplishments of the military occupation.

The author of The Allied Occupation of Japan, Edwin M. Martin, is former chief of Occupied Area Economic Affairs, United States Department of State. Mr. Martin writes with the accuracy and insight of firsthand knowledge, for his official position brought him in direct contact with the strategic, political, and economic factors that have shaped America's occupation policy.

As the book makes its appearance, this policy is undergoing a transition. Current thinking in business, government, and armed service groups is aimed at putting Japan on a working economic basis as speedily as possible. The desire is to take this postwar burden "off the back of the American taxpayer."

Mr. Martin's study will be of utmost importance in understanding the entire occupation, as well as the recent developments.

Women Voters Conference

Returning Tuesday evening from the League of Women Voters regional conference in San Francisco, Mrs. Frances A. Ballard, president, and three other delegates from the Monterey Peninsula organization were enthusiastic over the program of information and discussion led by Mrs. Nelson Morris of Toledo, Ohio, member of the national board, under arrangements carried out by members of the San Francisco League. Those attending from Carmel in addition to the president were Mrs. Howard Clark, Mrs. Douglas Carter, and Miss L. Lucile Turner. Mrs. Carter recently joined the local organization, transferring from Berkeley when she and Mr. Carter came to live in what had been their summer cottage for a dozen years. Mrs. V. Osmont, who had expected to attend, at the last moment found it impossible to go.

Purpose of the conference was to guide the study and suggest references and lines of research in the effect of governmental economic policies, including taxation, upon the high cost of living, the continuance of inflation, and the possibility of a depression such as those that have followed the other wars in our history. The key to controlling inflation is the production of scarce goods to meet the demands of consumers and that has not yet been achieved despite the record high employment, Mrs. Morris pointed out.

"Factories are operating at full capacity," she said; "civilian employment has reached an all time high. All of this means that there is more money available with which to buy goods, the supply of which is not increasing as rapidly as the money. One factor which points to continued inflation is the huge Federal expenditure for international reconstruction and for defense purposes because of the tense and critical international situation." Mrs. Morris did not believe that government purchases of the basic materials of steel, coal, and grains could be reduced because of the importance of national security; at the same time the inflation increases the cost to the government of these means of reconstruction and security. Members of the local League will have a chance to hear Mrs. Morris at the luncheon scheduled for next Thursday at 1:15 at Pine Inn.

Highlight of the conference was the forthright address on Monday evening by Dr. Theodore Kreps, professor of economics at Stanford University Graduate School of Business and senior specialist in this field for the U. S. Government Council of Economic Advisers, with an office in the Library of Congress. Professor Kreps is leaving for Washington in a few days to resume that phase of his professional duties. A good audience of men and women heard, with great interest, his analysis of the economic factors that influence the fluctuations in business and industry which so greatly affect the welfare of the people.

"In problems of economics," he said, "the particular individual in the White House makes little difference. Depressions are not due to a particular political party." He referred to the long-range economic practices and tendencies in our industrial development as the "gulf stream" that has more influence than any political pressure. Labor, business, and government are concerned, he said, and people "must want a stable economy enough to give up their pet prejudices. Depressions are unnecessary but to end them people must give up the notion that economic health will maintain itself, any more than a garden will without being watered, fertilized and cultivated. Prosperity is like health; we must work at it."

This subject of fluctuations from inflation to depression with comparable short periods of stability and what the citizen can do about it is the national League of Women Voters program of study for the next year and is part of the work being undertaken by the Monterey Peninsula study groups.

Riggins Return From Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. John DeWitt Riggins, (Constance McLaughlin) returned to town yesterday, following a brief honeymoon in Southern California. They were married last Friday afternoon at the Church of the Wayfarer, the Rev. Tod B. Sperling officiating.

Mrs. Riggins is known to hundreds of Carmel school children as "Miss McLaughlin at Sunset," where she has been teaching for the past four years, and where she will resume her first grade duties on Monday. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. McLaughlin.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a pine green gabardine suit, and a circlet of yellow carnations in her hair. Her bouquet was of orchids and lemon toned carnations. Mrs. James A. MacDonald of Stockton, the bride's sister was her attendant.

The best man was Professor F. E. LaCauza of the General Line School, and the ushers were: Lt. Comdr. E. W. Pate, Comdr. F. C. Snow, Earl Kanter and M. Curtis Smith, all of Los Angeles, and John O. Hassell of Jackson, Mississippi.

Mrs. Riggins attended the University of California and is a graduate of the College of the Pacific, where she was a member of Alpha Theta Tau.

The son of Mrs. John D. Riggins of Jackson, Mississippi, the groom was educated at the University of Mississippi and Johns Hopkins University. He is a member of the Burnham Park Yacht Club, Chicago, and the Naval Academy Yacht Squadron at Annapolis. At present he is assistant professor of electronics at the Navy General Line School in Monterey.

The degree of water pressure and water flow which you will enjoy in your new home depends a great deal upon the size of pipe installed. The difference between a weak flow and a good strong flow is contingent upon pipe diameters.

Applegate-Gergen Wedding

In an exquisitely designed gown of white satin with long train and voluminous veil, and carrying white orchids, Patricia Applegate, the daughter of Mrs. Ruth Applegate of Canyon City, Colorado, was married to David Robert Gergen, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Gergen of Carmel, at the Church of the Wayfarer at 4:00 o'clock Thanksgiving Day.

The bride, one of New York City's famous fashion models, was attended by the groom's sister-in-law, Mrs. Arthur W. Gergen, Jr., of Oakland, who wore a rose velvet dress and tiny hat of ostrich feathers, matching in color. She carried deep-hued sweetheart roses. The best man was Arthur W. Gergen, Jr., brother of the groom.

The groom, born in Albuquerque, New Mexico, attended high school there and then graduated from the University of New Mexico, a member of Sigma Chi.

A reception and supper followed the ceremony at the home of the groom.

Mrs. Ruth Applegate, the bride's mother wore a gray gabardine formal suit with turquoise hat and gloves, her corsage was of gardenias. Mrs. Gergen, Sr.'s gown was a mauve print highlighted with an intricate sequin design, her hat and gloves were deep violet, her corsage of orchids.

Among the Carmel children who will participate in the open-class demonstration of creative dancing, as taught by Ruth Allerhand, on Saturday, December 18, are Wendy and Robin Burnham, Bonnie Wager, Joan Leslie, Gretchen Heron, Tweed Champe and Bonnie Vandervort. Also included in the dances will be the boys and girls who took part in the recent presentation of Mid-summer Night's Dream at the Forest Theater, for which Miss Allerhand produced the dances. She was director of dancing for the Monterey Public Schools summer recreation program.

Miss Allerhand believes that "creative dancing is a basic cultural and artistic activity which culminates in a well-balanced personality." During class work she advocates working with partners, constructive criticism and class discussions.

The program December 18 will be held in the Sunset School cafeteria at 2 o'clock and will be open to the public.

Why present low telephone rates must be increased

We're forced to apply for increases because we, too, are up against the problem of rising costs.

Here's the story:

Telephone rates have gone up much less than most other things

Most businesses throughout the land have had to raise their prices a great deal... as the examples on the chart show.

But telephone rates, which were not generally increased between the 1920's and 1947, have gone up little even in these postwar years. The average in California is 15%.

The amounts we are now asking will vary for different services... but will average about 14%.

Compared to the prices of other things you buy, telephone service will still be one of your greatest bargains.

For every telephone put in this year we have spent $600

We're breaking records putting in new telephones in the face of high costs. The equipment needed to serve the average telephone in California before the war cost us $243. But costs have shot up. Today we are adding equipment costing about $600 for each new telephone.

To bring more and better service to California, Pacific Telephone has had to invest $280,000,000 in new facilities since V-J Day. This is one of the largest construction programs of any business in the state.

And we should put millions more to work in California to meet your growing needs.

To attract more working dollars we must have reasonable rates

Where does the money come from... the money we invest in California? We have to compete with other businesses for it. It cannot come out of the rates you pay for service. It must come from the savings of men and women all over the country. They want, of course, safety and a reasonable return on their investment. Or they won't invest.

Actual experience has shown that what we are earning in 1948 is not enough to attract the kind of investment money we need.

Pacific Telephone does not ask that it be allowed to earn one penny more than is required to do the job. But we must earn enough to do a good job for California.

In 1602, Sebastian Viscaino dropped anchor in the Bay of Monterey, the first man to set foot on its sandy shore. For 165 years, no other man beheld its tree-clad hills and blue water. In 1770, with the establishment of the Presidio of Monterey and the Mission San Carlos de Carmelo, Monterey became the seat of religious, civil, and military authority in the Spanish province of California. In 1842, the Spanish diplomat, Don Estaban Munras, built his home just outside the Presidio walls, and his descendants enjoyed the charm and warmth of this home until 1941. Then the original adobe building was remodeled to become the present CASA MUNRAS Hotel and Cottages. The adobe walls, 32 inches thick, can still be seen as you enter the Lobby. In here, was built the first fireplace in California

Casa Munras has thus grown out of the gay and romantic past of old Monterey. Now it makes new history in the establishment of an ultra-modern center for leisurely shopping, and extends to you a hearty welcome to take care of your today's needs in a setting of historic charm.

With Mary Madeleine

Grab coffee, ride in with the family, and get an early start on gift shopping: you can have a super-whopper breakfast and the Colonel's good humor to boot at HILLYER'S COFFEE SHOP on San Carlos street near Ocean Avenue. A Bushmaster Special, for instance, is a ham omelet between thin hot cakes, with syrup; mighty filling this, and served with "the best coffee west of Chicago. Hill Billy Spasm is a bacon omelet and "thinner" cakes; Daisy's Nightmare is another trick. HILLYER'S COFFEE SHOP will not serve dinner during December. They'll concentrate on a good start for your busy shopping days.

Strictly Arabian Nights stuff are the high-heel-yet-wedge house slippers at the VILLAGE SHOE TREE on Dolores street at Sixth. Pale gray-blue satin is embellished with old gold bead embroidery and sequins; fragile pink has white and blue shimmers. Of course they've frou-frou high heel mules, too. Hint on hinting: mention to your man the really handsome hand-painted ties of pure silk, styled and pleated for the VILLAGE SHOE TREE, and add that this shop keeps a record of customer's shoe sizes, (so he can "surprise" you with slippers!)

Very literary and leather chairish are the handsome sculpture book-ends you'll find just across the street on Dolores street at the BY THE SEA SHOP. There are monks playing vass viols or, reading in a big chair; seaman sitting on treasure chests, and modern but Greek horses' heads with flying manes, or bronze-like horses nobly pawing air. Realistic coloring adds to the unusualness of these book-ends at the BY THE SEA SHOP. While there, be sure to look over the varied little redwood pieces.

Step across Sixth street and linger hopefully before the HARRIET DUNCAN windows which say firmly, "Make Hers a Beautiful Christmas." A gift from here is certain guarantee of that! There's sheer hosiery, to be sure: Van Raalte and Bryan's Beautiful. There are bags and belts and gloves, besequinned or casual as the string which makes some models. There are cozy flower-sprigged flannellette nighties, and those devastating gowns for dreaming in sheer nylon. Sheer loveliness are these, and since the lace or net is nylon, too, the luxury look lingers after sleeping (no wrinkles), after washing (no ironing.) And ah, the evening sweaters. Always making glamor practical, is this HARRIET DUNCAN. These beautiful boucle knits are short-sleeved, and not too heavy, so they're year round for Carmel; and instead of too glittery, too fragile sequins, the golden touch is in metallic thread designfully knit at neck and sleeve edge. HARRIET DUNCAN adds that these are as good for cocktail wear as theater or hostess hearth, points out that her long black evening skirts in French matelasse don't wrinkle, so do honor your own fireside often. If you're concluding that you can find just about anything lovely for a lady at HARRIET DUNCAN'S, you couldn't be more right!

She has a new shipment of goat cheese, from a dietetic dairy, which means one kept specially clean. Carmel, California
November 10, 1948

To the Editor of The Carmel Pine Cone,
Carmel, California.

Dear Madam:

Inasmuch as the Carmel American Legion Post 512 is the sponsoring group of Scout Troop 86, and the trustees of the Boy Scout House real property at Mission street and Eighth, Carmel,

We, the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 512, Carmel, in business session, Nov. 9, 1948, did vote in a body to request the Chairman of the Peninsula Boy Scout Council to give a strict accounting of such funds as the Harry W. Turner $1,000.00 bequest, the $200.00 from the Church of the Wayfarer, All Saints' Church, the Lions Club, the Carmel Businessmen's Association, and any other monies accrued and on hand in the Boy Scouts of Carmel Special Fund.

Also an accurate account of future plans and developments of the above named Boy Scout House, Carmel.

The above accounting to be given in joint session of the Executive Committees of the Legion Post 512, and the Carmel Auxiliary 512, in conjunction with the Executive Committee of the Carmel Boys' Club and the Executive Committee of the Boy Scout Council, before the date of January 1, 1949.

Respectfully signed,
The American Legion
Auxiliary Unit 512,
Carmel, California.

This is a copy of the letter sent to the following parties: the Executive Committee of the Peninsula Boy Scout Council, the Executive Committee of the Legion Post 512, Carmel, the executive committee of the Carmel Boys' Club, the Mayor of the City of Carmel, the Salinas Council Office of the Boy Scouts of America.

Alice Askew,
Sec., Auxiliary 512,
Carmel, Calif.

Object of the request for the accounting and sending out letters to the various groups and individuals above named is to accelerate work on improving the Boy Scout House. "We want to know if the Boys' Club is going to move in," Mrs. Askew told The Pine Cone. "If so, they will make the improvements. If not, we shall have to do it and we want to know how much money we have to work with. There is no question of misappropriation of funds in our asking for an accounting. About 33 men vote on every expenditure."

Holdover members are Alfred C. Fry, Clifford Cook, J. O. Handley, Clayton B. Neill and Wesley W. Kergan.

Clark Reports On UWF Convention

Carmelites got a bird's-eye view of developments in the world government movement Wednesday night when George Clark, Peninsula chairman, reported to the United World Federalists about the national convention in Minneapolis, where he and Mrs. Clark were delegates. Most important trend was election of 40 to 45 members of congress and 12 to 15 United States Senators who are active supporters of World Government. In the 80th Congress only a handful could be so classified. This development reflects steady increase in UWF membership, which rose 150 per cent, to 36,600 in nine months, and continues to roll up by geometric progression. The Peninsula chapter, however, has outdone this record, starting with 24 members, when it was formally organized eight months ago, it now has 132 members.

Highlight of the Minneapolis convention were letters of broad approval from President Truman, and from Harold Stassen. Significant also was the fact that the Pope called Abbe Pierre, speaker at Minneapolis and French leader of the world government movement, to Rome to commend his work, asking that he report back progress made. Interesting also was the fact that in Connecticut last election, the statewide referendum in favor of world government was carried by an 11 to 1 vote.

The World Federalists again affirmed their policy of working for a strengthening of the UN, and disapproved all proposals to drive Russia out of the UN. They opposed a "preventive war" against Russia and expressed the belief that solution of controversial problems with Russia and creation of a world government must go hand in hand. On the other hand, they passed a resolution denying membership to persons seeking overthrow of the United States government by force.

George Clark will head a considerable delegation from the Monterey Peninsula, to the Northern California convention, the end of this week.

High School Girls—It's A Party!

Mrs. Edward W. Cochrane of the women's board of the Armed Services YMCA in Monterey announces that tomorrow night will be party night for all high school girls, over 16 years old, of Carmel, Monterey and Pacific Grove. There will be dancing, refreshments and a door prize and the girls are guaranteed at least a dozen dancing partners each as the normal attendance on Saturday evenings averages 500 soldiers, sailors and marines.

Mrs. Cochrane, whose husband is chairman of the YMCA Advisory Council, is an active member of the recently formed women's board which includes Mrs. J. H. Bastedo, senior advisor for junior hostesses, Mrs. Roger Fitch, Mrs. Markham Johnston and Mrs. Wilma Campbell, secretary of the advisory board.

"Last Tuesday," Mrs. Cochrane told us, "Mrs. Campbell and I, with the enthusiastic co-operation of the deans, addressed the girls of all three high schools. We told them of the real need for hostesses at our weekly dances. We further explained that their parents are also cordially invited, as our lonely young men thoroughly enjoy chatting with mothers and fathers too. We are most happy to furnish transportation for girls who cannot come otherwise, as our own council as well as the AWVS and the Soroptimist Club are always on call for cars. As Mrs. Bastedo and her committee attend all dances and parties in full force, parents need have no concern for the proprieties, rather, we feel, the more or less impersonal social atmosphere is excellent training for a young girl. The war is over but let's not forget the boys in uniform."

Members of the AWVS acted as hostesses at the YMCA turkey buffet last Thursday. More than 600 boys enjoyed the feast and over half a hundred home made pies climaxed the Thanksgiving feast.

New Residents

Mr. and Mrs. James Myrick of Los Angeles are new Carmel residents and home owners. "We arrived here at 6 a. m. Saturday and waited for daylight," Mrs. Myrick said. "Soon the vegetable man was stirring, then the oil station man and slowly Carmel awoke to a bright day. Jim and I secured a very nice, comfortable room, later on Sunday we had a cottage and by Monday we had bought ourselves a dear little summer and winter home, surrounded by huge pines."

University Women

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"God the Only Cause and Creator" is the subject of the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, December 5. The Golden Text is taken from Isaiah: "Thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord; and there is none else" (45:18).

Included in the sermon are the following citations:

The Bible: "Know ye that the Lord he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture" (Psalms 100:3).

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "So-called mortal mind — being non-existent and consequently not within the range of immortal existence — could not by simulating deific power invert the divine creation, and afterwards re-create persons or things upon its own plane, since nothing exists beyond the range of all-inclusive infinity, in which and of which God is the sole creator" (p. 513).

A Damsel In Distress

In passing the Bulletin Board outside the post office recently, the observer noticed a well dressed, apparently distraught, youngish woman rattling "Laddie's" chain, banging and shaking the fence and even trying to reach through and over. She looked at the observer, more or less wild eyed, and the following conversation took place:

She: How can I get in here?

He: There is no opening but you may, I think, enter through the candy shop. Did you lose something?

She: I thought, seeing the signs, there were rest rooms in there.

He: Sorry, but even if there were, you were trying the wrong one.

She: I tried "Lassie" but it didn't work.

She, still with a distraught air, departed hurriedly in the direction of the Pine Inn.

In view of the above, would it not be advisable for the City Fathers to give serious thought to placing on the Bulletin Board directions to the nearest, what we might term, Bomb Shelter, for the convenience of Carmel's many visitors.—L. G.

Carmel Dog Gets Her Mail Like Anybody Else

Show (Carmel Pine Cone, September 24.) She is owned by citizen of Carmel, and Post Office Box Holder, Derek Rayne. So, into Mr. Rayne's box popped Elskling's post card.

And, neither Elskling nor Mr. Rayne object to Carmel knowing what was on the other side of the card. It was from a Miss Nancy de Haven of Chicago, probably 10 years old. She says, in part, "I saw a picture of your wirehair, and I was wondering if you sold any of them. My mother and dad said they would give me a cute dog, if I could find one, for my birthday. Have you any pictures and if you don't mind would you send me one?" Needless to say, Nancy will get the picture, and the Carmel post office will continue to care for Elskling's fan mail.
